Discussion Guide

Let's review

At the start of each discussion, review the conversation ground rules for returning and new members alike to set the stage for active participation by all. You may want to use a timer as you go around the room. And don't forget to decide who will take notes and post a discussion recap.

- Be open and curious: Everyone has a unique perspective, so listen and be prepared to hear a different point of view. Remember, you do not need to share your political affiliation; this is a discussion and exchange of ideas, not politics.
- Be respectful and engaged: Be sure that everyone has a chance to speak before adding a second comment or perspective. Encourage each other's participation.
- Be focused and concise: Keep the conversation centered on the issue and the brief.

The "Table-it" Rule: If the group has gone off-topic but the area is of interest, the group can table the conversation and save it for another time to be addressed in a different manner.

Let's begin

- Take five minutes to walk through the brief. Highlight the main point of each section and key statistics.
- Each member is invited to answer the following questions in a two-three minute reaction to the brief:
  - Introduce yourself, and share what "lens of care" did you wear when reviewing this brief (e.g. personal, professional, community, state, nation, global)?
  - What did you find most interesting or surprising from reading the brief? What matters?

Spread the Word: Some Facts to Share with the Group During Your Discussion

- In a free enterprise system, individuals "pursue what they believe to be best for them." The government's role, then, is to allow individuals to make the most of their economic freedom.
- Nations with higher levels of economic freedom have an average per capita GDP roughly six times greater than those with lower levels of economic freedom, as well as higher life expectancy, political and civil liberties, gender equality, and happiness.
- Small businesses employ almost half (47%) of U.S. workers and drive 45% of U.S. GDP, but only about half of all small business establishments survive five years or longer, and only one-third make it past ten years.

Let's discuss

Below are 3 questions for the group to consider and discuss, or choose your own.

- Community: What is the impact of government rules and regulations in your area?
- Government: What should be the role of government in our economy? Where do government, business, and individuals intersect?
- Business: Are businesses thriving in your community? Is it easy to establish and grow an enterprise?

Let's act

1. Take it local. Talk to your neighbors to identify the status of free enterprise in your community. Identify opportunities to work with other community members in your area.
2. Explore the impact of free enterprise laws in your community. Search your municipality's website for information pertaining to taxes, business rules and regulations, and economic development initiatives. Try searching the words "small business directory" + [your state or municipality]. Get to know local businesses owners or entrepreneurs in your community, and ask them about the government regulations that may affect their businesses.
3. Investigate community programs. A Chamber of Commerce promotes the interests of the business community. You can find your local Chamber of Commerce here.
4. Research your elected representatives' positions on free enterprise and economic freedom, and their vision for how to tackle economic problems facing Americans and your community. You can find contact information for federal, state, and local government officials here. Your state or municipality's websites will also have information to contact leaders. Try looking at the drop-down menu for a Government tab.
5. Establish a relationship with your legislators. It's easy to establish a relationship with your legislators. Start by introducing yourself. You can also learn to write to your representatives or set up a meeting with a legislator on The Policy Circle website.
6. Consider writing a letter to the editor or an op-ed on your stance on data privacy in your local paper. Learn how on The Policy Circle website.

Next Steps for Your Circle

- Post a Recap: Summarize your discussion to share thoughts with members not present, and share planned actions from group members. Designate who will post a meeting recap on your circle page.
- Decide your next meeting topic. Want to discuss a related brief at your next meeting? Suggestions include:
  - Economic Growth
  - Government Regulation
  - Fiscal Responsibility
- Dive Deeper into the issues. If this is an area you would like to pursue further, consider taking possible steps to influence policy. The Policy Circle offers resources for developing a message about your issue and organizing a petition to amplify your voice and raise awareness. Don't miss our latest events that help you dive deeper on this issue and more.
